Find Peat-While making the excavation for an addition to the Hess bakery building on Grant avenue, workmen uncovered a peat bed which would prove immensely valuable to any locality where coal is not as cheap as it is in Ogden. According to those who have examined the de-posit, the peat discovered in the Grant avenue excavation is said to be of line quality and would provide excel-lent fuel when dried. The layer of decayed vegetable matter was uncovered at a depth of about eight feet below the level of the ground, but the extent of the deposit is not known, inasmuch as the excavation has not been extended below the low er level of the layer. The peat was found just below a deposit of blue

Gentlemen: I respectfully submit for your consideration my re-port of the sanitary condition of the county court house

"I carefully inspected the building this morning and found the condition to be of a such nature that action should be taken at once to remedy the very unsanitary and filthy con-ditions that now exist.

"The part used for a jail should be abandoned; the cells are damp and unhealthful. I found the whole plumbing system out of order, foul odors arising from filth accumulated in traps and cesspool. The tollets are in bad condition, the waste from them running on the floors. The bathroom is filthy-totally unfit for numan beings to use. "The overhead leating system should be removed and a modern

The petition relates that Mr. Peery died at Porterville, Cal., October 2, 1913, leaving a will bequeathing his estate to his wife and his four children. The estate in Utah is valued at about $35,670, $35,000 of which consists of capital stock in the D. H. Peery estate, the David H. Peery company, the Utah Milling company and other corporations, $300 in real estate and $370.55 cash deposit in The balance of the estate is in California.

JOHN M'GRAW LANDS IN OGDEN AND IS JAILED

"John McGraw," said Clerk Fulton, in police court this morning, "you are charged with drunkenness. How do you plead—guilty or not guilty?" At the sound of the name that has become a password, especially during the last week, the crowd of spectators looked up with interest. But McGraw stoutly maintained that he was not the Ginnt manager and had not got drunk because he lost the world's championship. All John did, accord-ing to the relief championship. All John did, according to the police, was to take advandof of officers and other important mattage of a stopover privilege attached to his tourist ticket long enough to get rid of a drunk contracted on the train. When McGraw told the judge
